Who is the woman who is riding the bike?

Learning Outcome

Use expressions about relationships and feelings in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How do you react when you see coworkers or classmates outside of work or school?
- Who is a person that you avoid talking to?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about feelings and reactions.
- I can discuss jobs and work by talking about future action using if, when, before or after.
- I can express complex statements using words like who, that or which.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa and Sally are having a picnic in the park. Who do they see?

* You use the verb "to have" or to go on to talk about a picnic.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: This is the perfect picnic spot!
- Vanessa: Yeah, there's a great view of the park which I love. Wait, isn't that your boss, Ms. Ryan, over there?
- Sally: Where?
- Vanessa: The woman who is riding the bike.
- Sally: Next to the guy that's sitting on the bench?
- Vanessa: Yeah, she's just passing him now.
- Sally: If she comes near here, I'm going to freak out!
- Vanessa: You must be terrified of her!
- Sally: I'm not terrified ... I can't hack seeing her right now.
- Vanessa: She must be a tough boss, then.
- Sally: No tougher than you, I'm sure!
- Vanessa: When you see her at work, are you going to say you saw her?
- Sally: No - before I get into the office, I'm going to text the guy who I work with, and ask him if the coast is clear. After he gives me the all clear, then I'll head to my desk.
- Vanessa: Wow. Do you think my employees think that way about me?
- Sally: I wouldn't be surprised. People respect you, which is important. Sometimes with respect comes a little fear ...
- Vanessa: I don't want to be a terror! That's got to be dreadful for the staff.

Learning Points

Subject and Object Relative Clauses

When you want to clarify which person or thing you are talking about, you use a relative clause.

You can begin a relative clause with who for people, which for things or that for either people or things.

In spoken English you usually use that, rather than which or who.

You put the relative clause immediately after the noun it talks about.

A subject relative clause describes the subject of the clause.

Example:

The man who/that called wanted to speak to Tom.

Which man? The man who called.

The clause who called immediately follows man - the noun it describes.

An object relative clause describes the object of the clause.

Example:

The book which/that I lent you was my father's.

Which book? The book I lent you.

Native speakers of English often omit the pronoun in object clauses.

For example:

The book I lent you was my father's.

Examples:

- The woman who is riding the bike is my boss.
- The man that's sitting on the bench is my friend.
- There's a great view of the park which I love.

Learning Points

Talking About the Future - If, When, Before and After

You use time clauses to give information about time and sequence.

You use the words If, When, Before and After in time clauses.

You use the first conditional with these time clauses.

If/When/Before/After + Subject + Simple Present tense, Subject + will/be going to + Simple Present tense

Before means at an earlier time.

After means at a later time.

Before I go to sleep, I'll set my alarm.

After I set my alarm, I'm going to go to sleep.

If means on the condition that ...

If I go to sleep, I'll set my alarm. (I'm not sure that I'll go to sleep.)

When means at the time of doing something.

When I go to bed, I'll set my alarm.

Examples:

- I'll do some research about it when I get home.
- Before you do that, let's try to guess!
- If they have a miniature horse sculpture in the gift shop, I'm going to buy it!
- After this, are we going to go for lunch?
