Let's Start!

Writing Spot: If you can hear the music pumping, get ready to dance!

Learning Outcome

Use expressions about relationships and feelings in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Do you ever go out dancing? If so, where?
- What kind of music do you like to dance to?

Can Do Statements

- I can write about feelings and reactions.
- I can write about connected events in the future using if, when, before or after.
- I can write a small descriptive paragraph.

Let's Explore!

Peter wants to go out tonight but his call to Vanessa and Sally has been cut off. Their plans are still up in the air*.

* "Cut off" means that the phone connection was lost.

 "Up in the air" means undecided.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: Vanessa, you can e-mail Peter on my cellphone, if you like. I just can't make or receive calls. If he calls back now, he will be sent directly to voicemail anyway.
- Vanessa: Sure, it just cut off. He was telling about that new dance club Shimmer on the harbor. Cellphones can be so frustrating sometimes.
- Sally: I heard from a co-worker that the music is terrible, the drinks are overpriced and the dance floor is tiny ... She was not impressed!
- Vanessa: If he thinks we are coming with him tonight, he will be sorely mistaken. Before you e-mail, we will need to come up with a plan.
- Sally: Maybe you can suggest Cloudwalk? The music's always pumping and they have a cheap cover charge.
- Vanessa: That place is full of college students. If another nineteen year old approaches me for my number, I will scream.
- Sally: That's funny. Maybe you should see it as a compliment ...
- Vanessa: When this happens to you, I will remember this conversation ... After you have that uncomfortable experience, you will feel shocked and insulted.
- Sally: Right ... so what am I going to write in this e-mail then?
- Vanessa: What about Soiree, on Lanister Blvd.? I saw a blog about it online. I'll find it on your phone ... Here look!
- Vanessa: Wow, it's so modern and chic. And those huge, comfy sofas will be a great place to take a break from all the dancing we'll be doing.
- Sally: Add the link to the e-mail. If Peter doesn't agree to this place, I'll be so annoyed!

Let's Practice!

The two friends discuss possible options for the evening.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Choose the words from the boxes to correctly complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Compare your pronunciation to one of your partner's. Correct each other. Model a conversation using the sentences. Switch roles.

After

he thinks will need to

will be sorely

Before

When this will remember

will feel

1. If _____ we are coming with him tonight, he _____ mistaken.
2. _____ happens to you, I _____ this conversation.
3. _____ you e-mail, we _____ come up with a plan.
4. _____ you have that uncomfortable experience, you _____ shocked and insulted.

Let's Practice!

Let's talk about feelings and reactions. Vanessa and Sally express their personalities.

Instructions: Write the missing words. Use: impressed, frustrating, scream, annoyed.

1. Cellphones can be so _____ sometimes.
2. She was not _____!
3. If Peter doesn't agree to this place, I'll be so _____!
4. If another nineteen year old approaches me for my number, I will _____.

Extension Activity

Write a paragraph convincing a friend to spend the evening at a club or restaurant in your area.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Write a descriptive paragraph about a club or restaurant.
- Include a topic sentence, supporting sentences and a concluding sentence.
- Use a variety of adjectives to describe the sights and sounds.
- Read the paragraph to a partner.
- Ask if your paragraph was persuasive and convincing.
- Make a list of words to describe someone's reaction to the club or restaurant. Examples: impressed, excited, bored

Self-Assessment Yes No

I write a descriptive paragraph about a club or restaurant.

I use a variety of adjectives to describe a business.

I think about how someone would react to the business.

Target Words

- chic (adjective): following the current fashion or style; fashionable and appealing e.g. The decor at that new club in the city is so chic.
- compliment (noun): a remark that says something good about someone or something e.g. Maybe you should see it as a compliment.
- to approach (verb): to start talking to someone for some purpose
e.g. If I am approached by another nineteen year old for my number, I will scream.
- sorely mistaken (adjective): badly incorrect or wrong
e.g. I am afraid you are sorely mistaken.
- voicemail (noun): a recorded voice message left for you on your phone e.g. If he calls back now, he will be sent directly to voicemail anyway.
- cover charge (noun): an entrance fee sometimes charged at bars, nightclubs, or restaurants.
e.g. The music's always pumping and they have a cheap cover charge.

Descriptive Paragraph With Future Time Clauses

Future time clauses with if, when, before, etc. (including first conditional)

In time clauses that talk about future time (clauses with if, when, after, before, as soon as, once, until, while, etc.) we use the present tense.

You use the First Conditional to talk about something that has a real possibility of happening in the future.

You use the First Conditional to say that, if the condition is met, then it's likely that you will do something.

Example: If we get to the club early, we will get a seat.

Conditional Clause	Main Clause
If we get to the club early,	we will get a seat.

Examples:

- As soon as you arrive, you will be ushered through the doors by the host.
- If he thinks we are coming with him tonight, he will be sorely mistaken.
- When this happens to you, I will remember this conversation.
- Before you e-mail, we will need to come up with a plan.
- After you have that uncomfortable experience, you will feel shocked and insulted.
