Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: A giant bowl of pasta! I'm starving, too!

Learning Outcome

Use expressions about relationships and feelings in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- When you're really hungry, what do you like to eat? Why?
- What gets you worried? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can say and use the sound -tion.
- I can show I understand someone's feelings or situation.
- I can link words with the same consonant sound.

Let's Explore!

Sally and Vanessa are hungry. Who feels like a bowl of pasta?

* To "feel like" means to want something.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: I'm famished after all that walking! I feel like a bowl of pasta!
- Sally: A giant bowl of pasta! I'm starving, too! I made reservations at the restaurant next to the art gallery.
- Vanessa: That's that Italian place, right? There are more restaurants popping up in this neighborhood lately. I'm a little worried about my bistro - there's so much more competition!
- Sally: How many new restaurants are there, do you know?
- Vanessa: Last time I checked, there were at least twenty.
- Sally: Twenty! That's got to be really worrying!
- Vanessa: Your reaction is stronger than mine and I'm the one who has a restaurant!
- Sally: What time is it?
- Vanessa: It's 1:30.
- Sally: Really? Oh no! The reservation was for 1:00. I lost track of time!
- Vanessa: Do you have the phone number? We can call and cancel.
- Sally: Let's just walk over. There's a path through the museum.
- Vanessa: Ooh! Look, there's a new exhibition coming next month! We have to go!
- Sally: Which exhibition?
- Vanessa: The Matthew Barney one. He does art installations as well. He is a famous sculptor.
- Sally: Ah, here's the restaurant. I'll go in and make sure the reservation is canceled. I feel like going somewhere else anyway.

Let's Practice!

Sally and Vanessa speak really fast sometimes.

Instructions: Write down the missing words to correctly complete the sentences. Use: lost track, more restaurants, got to, famous sculptor, least twenty, feel like.

1. I _____ a bowl of pasta!
2. There are _____ popping up in this neighborhood lately.
3. Last time I checked, there were at _____.
4. That's _____ be really worrying!

Learning Points

Pronouncing the Suffix -tion

Suffixes are parts of words that are at the end. They often indicate the form of the word.

One of the most common suffixes is -tion. This indicates that the word is a noun.

For example:

To reserve - Reservationtion

To compete - Competitiontion

The suffix -tion is pronounced with a /sh/ sound and a schwa.

You stress the syllable that comes right before the suffix.

Say these words. Stress the bolded syllable.

reservation

competition

reaction

cancellation

attention

introduction

sanitation

option

Examples:

- I made reservations at the restaurant next to the art gallery.
- I'm a little worried about my bistro - there's so much more competition!
- Look, there's a new exhibition coming next month!

Learning Points

Stressing New Information

In conversation, it is not always WHAT you say but HOW you say it. You can use stress to introduce new information and to show that you are listening and understand other people's feelings.

Usually, the stressed words in a sentence are the nouns, verbs, adjectives and adverbs. Sometimes, you can choose to stress other types of words to show that you are adding new information or showing that you understand other people's feelings.

For example:

Vanessa: I'm famished after all that walking! I feel like a bowl of pasta!

Sally: A giant bowl of pasta! I'm starving, too!

In this case, Sally stresses giant. She is adding new information to the idea of a bowl of pasta and she is showing that she understands Vanessa's feeling of being hungry.

You can stress words like really when you want to show empathy.

For example:

That's got to be really worrying!

Examples:

• Vanessa: Look, there's a new exhibition coming next month! We have to go!

Sally: Which exhibition?
